U. S. MAIL IS NOT DELAYED

Postmaster Oat Breaks In New Men.

STRIKERS ARE DISCHARGED

Postal Inspector Robinson and Collector Stackable Render Timely Assistance.

Oh, the postoffice men, those poor little chaps,
Who on steamer-days have to hike,
They're up on their ear and they've quit their job—
They're out on a regular strike.

It really was rough and you can't blame them;
It seems that no chance they get,
On the day that a steamer pokes round the point,
To twiddle a cigarette.

They have to work all the long day through,
To juggle an inky stream
Of letters and packages where they belong,
With never a chance to dream.

All through the week—oh, it's sad, sad, sad,
There isn't a thing to do
But masticate gum and speak these few words,
"There's nothing today for you."

Then comes a boat with a cartload of mail,
And sweat-stirring labor is rife—
Why, after five days of calm, undisturbed peace,
'Tis an absolute menace to life.

And so they've gone out, the poor, over-worked men,
Loudly the poor "caller" grieves,
His sole means of killing the hours is gone;
No wonder there's crepe on his sleeves.
H. M. AYRES.

Six men of the mailing and distributing departments of the postoffice did not report for duty yesterday morning, and their services were dispensed with without the formality of sending them their notices. The men who have left are Fred Hambrook, general delivery window; Webster, Orme, Donnelly and Austin.

Postmaster Oat had a serious problem to solve yesterday morning when the men did not show up for work, but made the best of the situation. He took off his coat and went merrily at the big sacks of paper mail which the strikers had refused to touch the night before. He was assisted by Postal Inspector W. A. Robinson, Superintendent of Railway Mail Service Carr, Assistant Postmaster Medeira, and all the clerks who could be summoned from the upstairs departments. They went at the mail like old-timers, and, despite their lack of systematic training, they made inroads into the pile of sacks and made much progress with the delayed mail.

Collector of Customs Stackable, who was formerly connected with the postoffice, came personally to see Postmaster Oat, and to offer him any service in his power to help him out of his dilemma. He offered to send some of the clerks from his office. The offer was accepted and John W. Short, E. E. Miller, J. Kelly Brown, Jr., S. A. Crook and Edward Fogarty were sent as a detail. The first two have seen service in the postoffice before and were able to assort the mail rapidly. The others were placed at the general delivery and stamp windows, where they were subjected to a goodly number of "scabs" in a joking manner.

For a time it seemed evident that the mails for the Colonies would be delayed, as well as that for the United States via the Zealandia. The composite mail-sorting force was equal to the occasion, however, and the mails were sent to the steamers without being delayed.

The officials of the postoffice declare that the men took a bad time to make their demand for relief from night work, and that it was done with the intent to tie up the office. The men knew that with the incoming and outgoing mails of yesterday, without extra pay and that they were to "work" it, and therefore struck to bring the postmaster to time by compulsion. The postmaster was very decided in his opinions as to the conduct of the men and declared that they could remain away from the office and were to be put in as fast as the list of applicants can be gone over and good men picked out.

The striking employees say there were two reasons for their action. They claimed that they were being worked overtime without extra pay and that Postal Inspector Robinson is oppressive in his treatment of them and has often criticized them harshly. They resolved upon walking out if they were not paid overtime, and so intimidated the postmaster shortly before 6 o'clock. Promptly at the hour they walked out and were not back until 1:30 o'clock P. M. yesterday. At 4:30 o'clock all the letters were in boxes or general delivery, but it was found that the papers had not been touched. At 5:30 o'clock Assistant Postmaster Madeira, learning the state of affairs, told the clerks the paper mail would have to be worked. Mr. Oat came in a little later and gave the same order but the clerks refused. They would work until 6 o'clock and would not come back after that. Mr. Oat told them then they need not come back at all if this was their decision.

Postal Inspector Robinson said yesterday: "In a general way, the conditions here are different from any place in the country. When the transfer was made last June, the conditions made it necessary for a good many men to be employed. They were inexperienced clerks then and are such now."

"On Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of every week when there are no steamers from the Coast, there are three or four men always idle in the City distributing room from 10 a. m. to 2 o'clock p. m. In the mailing department the clerks are busy all the time because they have to handle the mail that goes to every part of the world."

"The mail from the Coast did not reach the office until 1:30 o'clock P. M. yesterday. At 4:30 o'clock all the letters were in boxes or general delivery, but it was found that the papers had not been touched. At 5:30 o'clock Assistant Postmaster Madeira, learning the state of affairs, told the clerks the paper mail would have to be worked. Mr. Oat came in a little later and gave the same order but the clerks refused. They would work until 6 o'clock and would not come back after that. Mr. Oat told them then they need not come back at all if this was their decision."

"I wish to state that what the Republican said about my speaking to the clerks is absolutely false. I was not in the room and had no conversation with them on any matter. The only know-

GENIAL BOB SCOTT TO LEAVE THE HAWAIIAN

Popular Hotel Clerk Will Register Chinese.

BOB SCOTT, WHEN HE HAD NO WHISKERS.

BOB SCOTT, for four years the genial night clerk of the Hawaiian Hotel, leaves his post of duty in that hostelry at 7 o'clock this morning to take a position in the Chinese Registration office to be conducted under the supervision of the United States Internal Revenue Department. The change has been in contemplation for some weeks past and was hurried about when Hurt Thomas, agent of the Internal Revenue Department, took his departure for San Francisco last week. Mr. Scott had informed Mr. Thomas he was about to leave the Hawaiian Hotel to await the opening of the new Moana Hotel, where he will go on duty on the day clerk's staff, and the revenue official told him he could in the meantime have a clerkship in the Registration Bureau. The offer was accepted.

Forty-two years ago Mr. Scott began a career upon the stage. In 1859, when but a youngster, he was known as the "phenomenal boy tenor," and for three years sang in many of the eastern and middle states theaters. He left the stage to complete his schooling and then went back to the stage and continued in theatrical work until he came to the Hawaiian Islands five years ago. He brought a company to this country and then retired from the business to enter upon hotel life. He played in the amateur company which opened the Hawaiian Opera House. Mr. Scott has become almost a fixture of the Hawaiian Hotel and his absence will be greatly regretted by travelers who have been accustomed to looking forward to a glimpse of his smiling countenance and to a game of billiards with him.

NEW SHELLS ARE STILL UNORDERED

Healani Club Men Anxious for the Boats That are Needed.

George R. Carter, who returned on the Sonoma, did not, as was confidently expected he would, bring any news of the two new boats for the Hawaiian Boat Club.

Mr. Carter was entrusted with the mission of ordering the two new shells for the club, but he states that he was unable to make any arrangements in the matter.

Captain Atkinson is much perplexed over the matter and sent a telegram to the Coast on the Zealandia to find out if the boats can be forwarded in time for this season's work.

While away Mr. Carter neglected to advise Mr. Atkinson as to what he had or had not done, which has made things worse, for had Mr. Atkinson known that nothing had been done, he would have ordered the shells himself and by so doing obviated the chances of a serious handicap to the Healani men in the coming season's campaign.

George Bolan, an Irish lad of 19, died of starvation and exposure at Seattle last week.

Rev. C. R. Brown of San Francisco was seriously injured in a bicycle accident recently.
